Becky went to Cabrillo as a teenager in the 1990s, then transferred to UCSC. She had such a good experience at Cabrillo that in the 2000s, she came back and worked with Richard Griffiths and Rock Pfotenhauer. She also earned a second degree.

Dena taught night classes in Women’s Studies in the ‘90s. She then became the coordinator of Cabrillo’s Women’s Center, and when the Fast Track To Work Program began in 1998, she became the Manager.

"...It’s their focus on the power within that struck me to the core. It’s hearing myself laughing out loud at their beautiful sense of humor. It’s understanding through them that the strength it takes to face life head on can inspire readers like me, who feel genuinely renewed at book’s end." -- Patricia Holt, former book review editor, San Francisco Chronicle
