Local Water Suppliers Partner with Cabrillo Extension
To Offer High Quality, Low Cost Conservation Workshops

Santa Cruz County, California – A unique partnership between local water providers, building and landscape professionals and Cabrillo Extension is providing high quality, low cost water conservation workshops to the community this spring.

Five different workshops offer expert instruction on home water saving techniques and conservation principles that help protect limited, local water supplies. The workshops are all held at Cabrillo’s Aptos campus (6500 Soquel Drive, Aptos), and are detailed on the Cabrillo Extension website. Classes supported by this collaboration are as follows:

- Design and Build a Water Neutral Landscape (February 28)
- A-Z Rainwater Harvesting (March 7)
- Graywater: Laundry to Landscape (March 14)
- Replace Your Lawn! (April 25)
- Walkways Pathways and Patios (May 16 and 23)

The Water Conservation Coalition of Santa Cruz County sponsored the workshops, allowing registration fees to be significantly reduced to only $25 with further discounts for registrations received before February 23rd, providing a savings of over $60 per class for participants.

Easy online registration is available through the Cabrillo Extension web page, or by calling the Cabrillo Extension office at 831-479-6331. Space is limited so register early!

The Water Conservation Coalition is a collaboration between local nonprofits, government agencies and water providers that partner to promote regional water conservation.

Member organizations of the Water Conservation Coalition contributing to these workshops include: the San Lorenzo Valley Water District, Scotts Valley Water District, City of Santa Cruz Water Department, Soquel Creek Water District, and the City of Watsonville (logos below).
