

Digital Media

MARK FARRAR

“In conjunction with our Cabrillo Digital Media class, we collaborated on an award-winning video and gained experience in the professional production process that helped us start a production business.”

Marshall Brekka and Barak Wouk

The Programs

Digital Publishing Program You learn communication design principles and processes for designing, creating, producing, and publishing primarily printed materials. Students learn graphic design, typography, photo editing, illustration, photo imaging, page layout, styles sheets, type formatting, file management, color pre-press, and proofing strategies for the design and layout of printed media—from labels and stamps to books and magazines. Design and layout principles learned in digital publishing for pre-press translate readily to screen media, web publishing, multimedia, motion graphics, video production, illuminated signs, and other non-print purposes.

BETH REGARDEZ

“I learned about the printing process in my digital publishing class.”

Isabel Velasquez

Web Media Program You learn the principles, concepts, tools, and techniques involved in the design, development, production, and publication of interactive web sites. Web Media courses are designed to prepare students for entry-level positions in the fields of planning, designing, and producing web sites and related interactive screen-based media. Web Media skills and creative digital pursuits include motion media and video that can be used for commercial, educational, and artistic projects.

Increasingly, the media fields involving graphic design for print, interactive web design, video, and motion graphics are intersecting. In all cases, defining qualities for employment emphasize creative thinking, design talent, technical proficiency, and the ability to work effectively in teams.

ELISE HOFFMAN

"Through Cabrillo Digital Media, I discovered my passion for the digital arts and developed my skills in print publishing, graphic arts production, typography, and web design."

Natalie Carlson

"My B.A. in film and digital media was not enough to land a job, yet a single Cabrillo class opened me up to a whole other job market in Flash-related design and gave me that extra push to get a good job right out of school!"

Annie Gerow

BETH REGARDIZ

The three most important qualities employers look for in digital media job seekers are: talent—inventive and creative with a serious interest in digital media, teamwork—strong group communication and problem-solving skills, and aptitude for technology—proficient with digital tools and techniques. Programming, drawing ability, writing proficiency and animation skills are also especially useful.

While creative job opportunities are increasing on the Central Coast and in the greater Bay Area, as a digital media professional you can work locally and globally at the same time. Work at home, start your own business, or take your talents on the road and around the world.
