Dependency Status Petition

Rev. 1/9/09

Federal laws expect your parents' to have the primary responsibility of paying for your educational expenses. If the directions on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) instruct you to provide your parent's information, then, by federal regulations, you are considered dependent. If there are special circumstances and you cannot obtain parental information, the Financial Aid Office may consider a petition for an override of federal regulations. This may apply to situations where the student's physical or emotional welfare is jeopardized by contact with the parent or some other extreme circumstance exists. In such cases, the student must complete this form and provide additional written documentation to substantiate his/her situation.

Documentation is critical and necessary in making this decision.
