APTOS, Calif. — A suspicious package found on the campus of Cabrillo College in Aptos Thursday morning has forced the partial evacuation of part of the school, according to the Santa Cruz County Sheriff's Department.

The suspicious package was discovered on the upper part of the campus in the 400 building at around 11 a.m. April Skalland of the Santa Cruz County Sheriff's Department said. That portion of the campus was being evacuated within 30 minutes of the package being found.

Skalland said the lower part of campus was not affected and that classes were still being held.

The bomb team is on scene checking out the package. CHP is handling street closures in area. According to Skalland, the upper portion of the campus should be reopened by 1 p.m.
