The Line of Best Fit (linear regression)

Every set of data has a “line of best fit.” The word “best” means better than any other; it does not mean that the line is a good fit. This line, also called the “regression line,” usually goes between the data points, rather than through them. Not all scatter diagrams will resemble lines. Below are some other common graphs that you may encounter throughout your study of algebra.