Study with and Get to Know Other Students.
Form study groups or success groups with your classmates

- Early in the semester, invite interested students to meet to organize a study group.
- Ask your instructor for a minute of class time to announce the formation of a study group.
• Of course, some students can do well on their own. Find out what works best for you.
• Most students know that it’s a good idea to know the names and contact information for at least some of your classmates.
Get involved with student activities and campus clubs.